PREFACE

This is not intended as a lineage of the Thompsons in the United States, or even of all of the descendants of Anthony Thompson, of New Haven, Conn., who was the immigrant ancestor of the compiler.

The direct line of descent is shown from Anthony to his great-grandsons Samuel and Amos Thompson (brothers), who settled in Charlotte Precinct, Dutchess County, N. Y., in 1750. The lineage of the descendants of Samuel and Amos appear so far as it was practicable to get them with accuracy.

Brief mention is made of the Harris, Baker and Wheeler lineages, who were of the allied families of which the compiler is a descendant.

No doubt errors will be found, yet an effort has been made to avoid them.

William Baker Thompson,
Compiler.

FIRST EUROPEAN SETTLERS

These were a company of English Puritans, led by John Davenport and Theophilus Eaton. Davenport had been Vicar of St. Stephen's Church, Coleman Street, London, and Eaton had been a parishioner in the same parish. Their friendship had probably been of an earlier date, than their residence in London, as they were both born in Coventry; and there was no great difference in their ages. The company sailed from London in the "Hector" and another vessel whose name has not been preserved, and arrived at Boston, June 26, 1637. An exploring party, led by Eaton, left Boston, Aug. 31, and went by water to Quinnipiac. They were so well satisfied with what they found, they left seven of their number to spend the winter, preparing for the permanent occupation of the place.

In April, 1638, the whole party arrived from Boston. It now included, not only those that came from London with Davenport and Eaton, but a company from Hereford and other Western Counties of England, which sailed from Bristol, in the "James," under the leadership of Peter Prudden, a non-conforming minister of the Church of England, had united itself in Boston to the London company; and in addition, not a few residents of Massachusetts, who were disposed to join the New Enterprise.

On the Sunday following their arrival at Quinnipiac, the company assembled twice for public worship; Mr. Davenport preached in the morning and Mr. Prudden in the afternoon. The service was held under a spreading oak, near the northwest angle made by George and College Streets. Public worship was ever after maintained in the town. About a year after the arrival, they began the erection of a house of worship.

Before February 12, 1639, Prudden and his friends purchased lands and started the town of Milford. June 4, 1639, a meeting of the proprietors, or free planters, as they were called, was held in the barn of Mr. Robert Newman "to consult about settling civil government according to God, and about the nomination of persons that might be found, by consent of all, fittest in all respects for the foundation work of a church." At this meeting it was voted that in the civil government to be established, the right of suffrage should be conferred on church members only, and twelve men were chosen, and instructed, "to choose out of themselves seven that shall be most approved of the major part, to begin the Church." In due time the twelve, thus appointed and empowered, chose seven men, who, on the 22d of August, 1639, instituted the church by a solemn and formal covenant one with another.

On the 25th of October, 1639, civil government was instituted; the seven men appointed by the twelve, chosen in a full meeting of free planters, conferring the right of suffrage upon "all those that have been received into the fellowship of this Church since the gathering of it, or who being members of other approved churches offered themselves." Of the little commonwealth thus established, Theophilus Eaton was chosen "Magistrate for the term of one whole year; and Robert Newman, Matthew Gilbert, Nathaniel Turner and Thomas Fugill, Deputies to assist the Magistrate in all Courts called by him for the occasion of the plantation, for the same term of one whole year." Fugill was clerk and Robert Seeley marshal.

Sept. 1, 1640, the General Court ordered the name changed to New Haven. In the names of those who commenced the settlement, is Anthony Thompson, four persons in his family; estate, 150 pounds; lands in the first division, 17½ acres; lands in the neck, 3½ acres; meadows, 9½ acres; lands in the second division, 38 acres.

"Seating the Meeting House in 1647. First for the men's seats, viz: the middle seats have to sit in them." Anthony Thompson was assigned to seat 6, William Thompson was assigned to seat 7.

"Secondly for the women's seats in the middle." Sister Thompson was assigned to seat 7. They beat the drum to call the people to church. The ministers wore gowns and bands as they had in England.

The settlers' first Sunday in their new home was April 18, 1638. Rev. Davenport preached in the morning; text, Matt.

6, 1. "Take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them; otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven."

There were three brothers, viz: Anthony, John and William Thompson that left England with the party led by Rev. Davenport and Gov. Eaton. Anthony and William settled at New Haven; John at East Haven. The precise date that William came to New Haven is unknown. His name does not appear in the (1639) list of first settlers, but that of Anthony does with four persons in his family.

June 4th, 1639, Anthony Thompson with other male church members, signed the Colony Compact, at a meeting held in Robert Newman's barn. Also soldier in Indian troubles, New Haven Colony.

THOMPSON LINEAGE

ANTHONY THOMPSON,

ANTHONY THOMPSON[1], probably b. Coventry, England. It is not known when or where his first wife died; probably before he went to New Haven, as her name does not appear in the list of New Haven settlers in 1639. Anthony married second wife, Catherine; date of marriage unknown. Anthony made a nuncupative will in the presence of Rev. John Davenport and Robert Newman, March 23, 1648, and died before the end of the month.

Anthony's first wife was the mother of the first three children. Second wife, Catherine, was the mother of the other three. Anthony willed a certain sum to his daughter Bridget, provided she married in accordance with the wishes of the deacons of the church. She married a minister, and doubtless retained the property. He willed certain property to Catherine, so long as she remained his widow. She married Nicholas Camp, of Milford, July 14, 1652. Doubtless the property reverted to the family.

Capt. Samuel Thompson's sons Samuel, Amos and Gideon removed from New Haven to Goshen, Litchfield County, Conn., in 1740. Samuel and Amos removed from the last named place to Dutchess County, N. Y., probably in 1750. Samuel sold his property in Goshen, Aug. 23, 1750. Amos was elected Town Clerk and Treasurer of Goshen in 1741, and each year thereafter until 1750, when he declined re-election, hence the conclusion that they removed to Dutchess County in 1750. There is no evidence that Enos ever lived at Goshen. It is believed that he removed from New Haven to Dutchess County.

Nov. 11, 1762, Amos Thompson conveyed three acres to Asa Thompson "Said piece of land is a part of that lot of land which I, together with Samuel and Gideon, bought of Cornelius Van Wyck."

It is not thought that Gideon resided permanently in Dutchess County.

Nov. 10, 1761, Samuel Thompson conveyed 31 acres to Asa Thompson "According to our subdivision of the Great Lot of Land, I together with Amos and Gideon bought of Cornelius Van Wyck." Joseph Curtis and Enos Thompson witnesses.

Roger Alling was the first of the name at New Haven, Conn.

John Alling came about ten years later.

Roger and John Alling may or may not have been kin.

It has been claimed that they were cousins.

Samuel, son of John Alling (who had 8 children), b. March 24, 1670; d. about 1744. Had 8 children. Sarah (4th child), b. April 25, 1702; m. Sept. 7, 1726; Amos Thompson[5]. The will of Samuel Alling did not mention a wife. He did however mention 3 m. daus., Lydia, Sarah and Mary, to each of whom he gave 50 pounds at the time of their marriage.

Mass. Archives.

Vol. 70; p. 219.

To his Excellency the Governour together with the Honoured Councll & Representatives in General Court Assembled: ffebr. 13th 9$^{3}_{4}$ whereas there was a vote passed by this Honoured Court at their former Sessions in October last: that the Plunder brought away by some of our men who persue l

the Indians the last Summer from Quabague, should be equally divided between the men that made the Assault upon the Indians & those who tarried with the horses: we being very unwilling that men of valour & industry should have any just cause of Discouragement, are bold humbly to request this Honoured Court to take that matter into further consideration: Concluding that the reason of the former vote, was the want of thorow information of the Circumstances of that affair: Let it please the Court to Consider, ffirst that those who came away from the place of the Assault without plunder, had opportunity to have brought away that which was as valuable & as portable as that which was brought away by others: there was a great deal of good plunder left, which by reason of their neglect, became a supply to the enemy: the reason, why they had no plunder was because they would have none: if there had been none left for them or if they had been wounded & so uncapable to help themselves justice would have required a division: but it was not from necessity but choice, that they came empty away, they judged it not worth the while to cumber themselves for the gains

2dly: Our men who brought away plunder have dearly earned it: they were about seventy miles from home, wearied & spent with their journey, loaded with their own armes, in danger to be persued by the enemy: what they brought away is hardly a meet recompance for their labour: few men would have given twelve pence for a gun in that place, under their circumstances: after they are paid at a reasonable rate for their pains there will be nothing remaining:

3dly: A great part of the men that tarried with the horses doe rather deserve blame then a recompence: it was judged that ten men were sufficient to tarry; whereas nineteen did tarry & would not be persuaded by any arguments to adventure farther against the enemy: & it seems hard that valour & cowardice should have the same reward: that the travail, hazzard & labour of our men should be overlooked; & others made equal to them, who defeated them, & exposed them to danger, if these men that brought away plunder had been of that spirit that several who tarried with the horses were of: there had not been one Indian killed, but the whole undertaking had come to nothing:

We have been bold to suggest our desire & the reasons of it to this Honoured Court from the respect that we have to the publike good; if men of valour & resolution be not encouraged, we shall find intollerable difficulty in doing any thing to effect against the enemy: but if they be incouraged they will be ready upon all occasions to adventure themselves: we pray the Lord to direct you in all your weighty consultations & Remaine your servants

APPENDIX

ANTHONY THOMPSON'S WILL.

A wrighting presented in Court for the last will and testament of Anthony Thompson deceased, made March 23, 1647.

Brother Thompson willed to his Eldest Son his inheritance house And Land and medow he had given him by the town, only the house his wife is to have during her life, and to keep it in repair.

And after her decease he is to have ye house also, and ten pounds also when he comes to eighteen year of age. Also Brother Tompson gives And bequeaths to his second son, Anthony, the land and medow he bought of Brother Clarke as his portion on ye West side. And ten pounds to be paid him when he comes to ye age of twenty and one years. Also he gives and bequeathes unto his daughter Bridget, which he had by his former wife, fifteen pounds to be paid her at ye age of Eighteen years, provided that she dispose of her self in marriage with the Consent and Approbation of her mother, and the Elders of ye Church then being. And for the remainder of his Estate, he gives and bequeaths to his wife, and in case she doe marrye Againe, it is his will that his other daughters be provided for with Equal portions, as his other daughter has, with the advice of ye Elders then being, and as a testimony of his Brotherly love he gives unto his brothers William and John Tompson, each of them ten shillings.

We whose names are under written did understand that brother Tompson declared his minde in ye former particulars animo testatii and that his true intent was y't his wife should be sole Executrix, though it was not Expressed in ye wrighting because it was not drawne up in forme, as we hoped there might be time to doe it more perfectly, in ye maine part we did and doe look at it as his nuncupative last will and testament.

John Davenport.
Robert Newman.

This writing was presented to the Court of Magistrates the 27th of May, 1650, And was found defective in sundry particulars so that the Court could not allowe of it for a legall will, yet they conceive that it is a declaration of ye minde of the deceased concerning his Estate, and therefore ordered that the wife of the said Anthony Tompson should Administer upon ye Estate, According to the particulars in his wright ing contained.

ANTHONY THOMPSON[1].

The Records show that Anthony[1] was entrusted with various civic duties in New Haven on committees in charge of deepening the channel in the harbor, conserving the forests, auditing the accounts of the town treasurer and as "collector for the college corn," in all of which he must have acquitted himself with credit as there does not appear to have been any objection to the duties performed.

The conservation of the forests in that early day is thus set forth in the Records of the Colony and Jurisdiction of New Haven from 1638 to 1649.

THE THOMPSONS WHO ARE BURIED AT "THE SQUARE"

This peaceful God's Acre should be a spot revered by us of Thompson lineage, for in this stone bordered enclosure, beneath protecting pines, sleep many of our ancestors.

Samuel and Esther Alling Thompson, their children Caleb and Ezra and other descendants, Amos and Sarah Allen Thompson with Allen, Asa, Eunice and remoter posterity, besides members of families linked by inter-marriage with ours, all have been borne hither to await the resurrection of the dead.

These early Dutchess County Thompsons were a sturdy race, known for their industry and integrity of life. Many of them held important offices of trust under the crown and later under federal government. They were owners and tillers of the soil, belonging to that ancient order of yeomen of honorable tradition, whose strength constitutes a nation's prosperity.

It is said of Caleb Thompson, that while quiet and retiring in manner and reticent in speech, he was nevertheless a man of affairs and of good, balanced judgment. He was ever ready to relieve distress and his word was accounted of equal value with his bond.

Caleb was but two days the junior of the immortal Father of his Country, thus making the twenty-fourth of February a date of great personal value to his descendants.

Caleb lived to a hale and hearty old age, dying within a few weeks of his ninety-first birthday.

To the world at large these memorials of hidden, uneventful lives may be as naught, but, to us, this simple record of plain men and women is eloquent.

Toilsome and meager years were theirs—privation and self-sacrifice were known to them—and this that their descendants might enter into a larger life of more extended scope, of greater beneficence in purpose.

In accepting the privileges of our heritage, do not let us ignore its responsibilities.

Georgia Thompson Walsh.

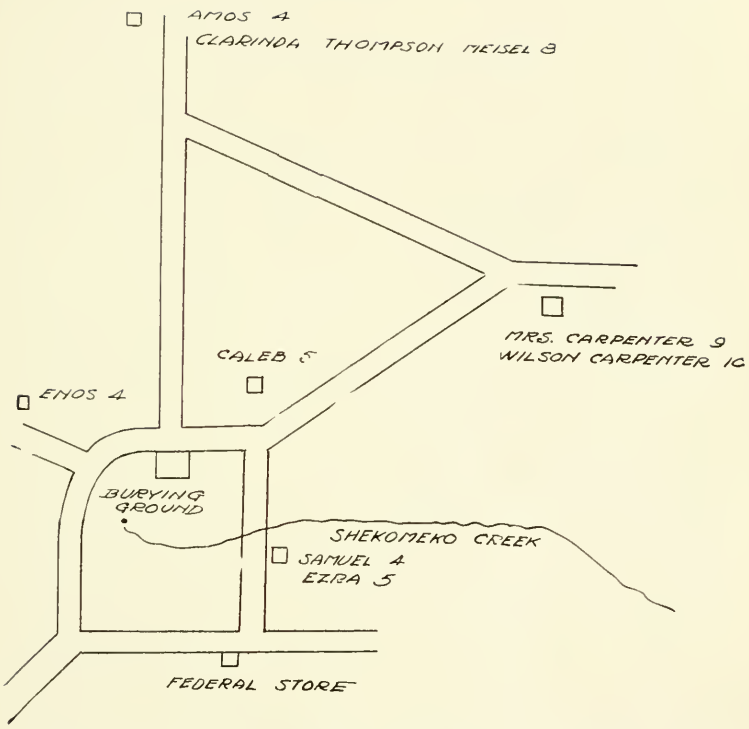
"The Square"



The above diagram shows what is known as "The Square" in the town of Stanford, Dutchess County, N. Y., also the burying ground where many of the early settlers were interred and the location of Samuel, Amos and Enos Thompson, who were the first of our lineage in the State of New York. Samuel, Amos and Gideon (brothers) purchased of Cornelius Van Wyck, two thousand eight hundred acres and made a sub-division of it. Mrs. Clarinda Thompson Meisel is the only person bearing the name of Thompson that owns any part of the original purchase. She is a direct descendant of Amos and resides where he lived.

I give and bequeath to my said wife all the remainder of my household furniture of every description including all painting and pictures.

Whereas my son Gilbert and my daughter Mary Louisa will upon my decease be entitled to the possession and enjoyment of property as heirs of their mother and upon which I have expended large sums of money in the improvement of the same the exclusive benefit of which will come to them, I therefore deem it just to make some special provision with respect to advances in money which I have made to them exclusive of such improvements which is as follows. I have advanced to my son Gilbert about the sum of Three Thousand dollars which sum or such part thereof as shall remain due at the time of my decease, I do hereby order and direct to be charged upon and deducted out of his share of my estate without any charge of interest thereon. Whereas it was my intention to have made my son, Gilbert Livingston Thompson, and my daughter, Mary Louisa Clark, executors with my wife of this my will, but as their residence is so distant it would be very inconvenient for them to act as executors and the situation of my property and affairs is such that the settlement of the same will occasion but little trouble, and having the fullest confidence that my dearest beloved wife will faithfully carry into execution this my will according to the Spirit, true intent, and meaning thereof, I do hereby appoint my said wife sole executrix of this my last Will and Testament, and do hereby revoke all former wills and codicils by me made, and having as I trust and believe made a just and equitable distribution of my estate. It is my hope and ardent desire that those interested therein will amicably carry this my will into execution according to the true intent and meaning thereof.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal and hereby publish and declare this instrument to be my last Will and Testament this seventeenth day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty three.

HAMMERTOWN, PINE PLAINS, DUTCHESS COUNTY, N. Y.

The scythe works at Hammertown was in its time the most important and extensive industry in this town. John Harris, the founder of the enterprise in Pine Plains at Hammertown, when about twenty years old commenced making scythes by hand on an anvil at the Andreas Rowe Corners, a half mile north of Shacameco station. The shop was owned by his uncle Joseph Harris, and was then in Amenia Precinct. Joseph Harris at that time owned a mulatto slave who was said to be a good scythe maker, and with whom John Harris had his first experience at scythe making. John Harris worked here about five years, meantime married Mary Gamble, and both emigrated about 1770 to Fort Ann, then an important military post about sixty-seven miles north east of Albany.

Each succeeding year after his settlement brought increased trial and danger to him, as also to all the settlers in the region of Lake Champlain. In constant danger of harm by the Indians, and the uncertain tenure of life and property incident to the then uncertain colonial struggle for existence, he—having a wife and children—became alarmed, and in the spring of 1777, before the winter snow had wasted, took what household goods he could load on an ox sled and started for the "Little Nine Partners" in Dutchess County. Not out of sight of his house he saw it burning—the work of the Indians. His wife had left a day or two previously on horse back with her two daughters—all on one horse—the eldest about three years old. She arrived at her destination safely several days in advance of her husband, and to her last years related the incidents of this journey with vivid interest to her relatives and friends. John Harris also made his return safely to the old shop at the Andreas Rowe Corners, then supposed to be in the "Little Nine Partners," but upon the permanent location of the boundary line between the two patents a few years later it was in the territory of the "Great Nines." The shop was on the north side of the corners a short distance from the combined stable and carriage house now there. Meantime, during the absence of John Harris at Fort Ann, the scythe making had been continued at this shop by Joseph Harris and his mulatto slave and the scythes sold in southern Amenia and other adjacent points. A portion of the steel, possibly all, used in their manufacture was purchased at the "Steel Works," near now Wassaic, which was then (1776) made by Captain James Reed and a Mr. Ellis from the iron in pigs from Livingston's Ancram Furnace, which was carted to the Steel Works at ten shillings for twelve hundred pounds. Steel sold for a shilling a pound at retail, one hundred pounds for twenty dollars, and refined steel twenty-five dollars a hundred. The revolutionary war stopped the importation of iron and steel, and gave impetus to home manufacture. Hence the high price of iron and steel. Captain James Reed who manufactured steel had a store, and in 1776, purchased scythes of Joseph Harris at eighty-four shillings a dozen, paying for them in steel and retailing them at ten shillings each. They were called "Harris Scythes," and from this fact Col. Silas Harris when he became a manufacturer of sythes a half century later, pasted a printed label on each scythe having the legend "Established in 1776." But it is not generally known that the Harris scythes of 1776 were made at Andreas Rowe Corners by "Joseph Harris, blacksmith," as proprietor.

John Harris worked here at scythe making six years after his return from Fort Ann, when the revolutionary war having ended, he in 1783 purchased of Adam Snyder, in Pine Plains, one hundred acres which is the "old Harris farm," west of the Harris mills, now (1897) owned by Anthony H. Barton. This purchase included the sawmill and the dwelling opposite, which is the "old Harris house" now repaired. The grist mill property he purchased four years later, on which in 1808 a "new" grist mill was built which is the present grist mill, formerly called "Harris Mill."

John Harris made scythes at a shop near the saw mill house when he first came here, and later had a shop below the grist mill. About 1786, Hugh Gamble, a brother of his wife, came as an apprentice, he being then about eighteen. Edmund Reynolds, later a well-known farmer, entered the shop about that time, and Mrs. Harris affectionately called him "one of my shop boys." Later in life he made scythes on his own account on the present Isaac Carman farm, principally for his own use.

About 1790 a race was cut on the east side of the Shacameco commencing near the now Anthony H. Barton residence, extending to near the present residence of Mr. Slingerland at Hammertown, where shops were established at the foot of the hill east of the house. The highway then was at the foot of this hill winding easterly to the bridge on the now highway. Thus the shop was on the highway. Harris and Gamble made scythes at these shops several years. About 1810, Seth Harris, from Kingsbury, N. Y., another branch of the family, took a financial interest in the business with John Harris. Before leaving Kingsbury he had buried his wife, Isabella Gamble, sister to the wife of John Harris. They had three children, John, Silas and Elizabeth, who came with them. John and Silas became interested in scythe making.

Better facilities for making scythes were needed to meet the increased demand, and upon the coming of Seth Harris and sons a site was secured on the west side of the stream now indicated by the ruins, and a race or ditch cut leading thereto on the west side to intersect the main stream about eighty rods above the shops. A dam was built at the new site and a frame building or shop erected near the present highway bridge, a trip hammer placed therein and used for the first time in the manufacture of the Harris scythes. The shop already mentioned on the east side under the hill was used in connection with the one on the west side, for turning and finishing, which as yet was done by hand.

About 1812 Cyrus Burnap entered the shops of the Harris Company at a salary of $500 a year. He was a master workman and used the trip hammer. The business continued without any change of note until 1814 when John Harris and Hugh Gamble deceased, Gamble on the first of January, and Harris November 27, 1814.

The business was now left to Seth Harris and his two sons, John and Silas. John was an ingenious and skilled workman but, Silas was never a practical workman. About 1816 the stone shop was built, and a finishing trip put in, which made two trip hammers in the works. This building was 23x30, and besides the trips had a grindstone. It is the building to the right in the cut, with a small cupola. The finishing shop on the east plant, near the now Slingerland residence, was also used in connection with the shops on the west plant. Solomon Ferris, John Deuel and John Hall were principal finishers, and among their helpers was Ludlow E. Lapham, then a lad, who later moved to Penn Yan, N. Y. John Hall also at times worked in the frame shop on the west plant and Cyrus Burnap used the finishing trip in the stone shop. At this time about five hundred dozen scythes were made annually. The grinding of the scythes was divided between the works for that purpose in Ancram near the "Delamater place" and the shop here according to convenience and the supply of water. Little change took place in the business from 1817 to 1820, except the abandonment of the plant on the east side. John Harris had meantime married a daughter of William Righter, and Silas Harris, (Colonel, as he was called,) had married Maria, a daughter of Edward Puggsley. John lived in a dwelling on the side hill opposite the Peter Husted dwelling, and Silas in the old Harris house opposite the now Slingerland home, then the residence of Joshua Culver. Financial embarrassment came about this time. Seth Harris retired and continued in the same business at Salisbury, Conn., with one James Harris, with whom he was a partner, leaving the work here to his sons John and Col. Silas. (Note.—The Hudson Bee has this notice: James and Seth Harris's Scythes for sale by Rufus Reed, Hudson, May 31, 1814.) Cyrus Burnap left at this time and went to farming. Soon after this Col. Silas Harris become sole manager and proprietor and all the manufacturing was done at the west plant. The hammers were kept in motion and the financial struggle passed. John, his brother, remained as foreman eight years, and among the principal workmen meantime were John Hall, Solomon Ferris, John Deuel, James Deuel, Ludlow E. Lapham, John Bevans and Lewis Germond. The place was literally Hammer Town.

History of Little Nine Partners of North East Precinct, and Pine Plains, New York, Dutchess County. By Isaac Hunting, Pine Plains, N. Y.

EDWARD BAKER

Edward Baker: Emigrant ancestor; Englishman; farmer; settled on south side of "Baker's Hill" in Saugus (then Lynn), Mass., in 1630. Probably came over in the large fleet of Gov. Winthrop which sailed from England in April and arrived at Boston and Salem in June and July 1630. Fleet consisted of 11 vessels, and brought over 1,700 colonists. Some of them from the western part of England, but the greater number from about London. Some of them settled upon the river Saugus. Lynn was settled only the previous year by 5 families, and this year received an addition of 50 persons with their families. (Edward Baker was admitted a "Freeman" March 14, 1638. Before a man could vote or hold office he must me made a "freeman" by the General or Quarterly Court. Prior to 1664 he must be a member of the Congregational Church. Then, by a Royal Order the requirement was modified so that a certificate from a clergyman that the man was correct in conduct and doctrine was sufficient to obtain for him the privilege of being a "Freeman.") Nothing is known of Edward Baker's wife except that her name Joan (Jane) and that she died April 9, 1603. In 1658 Edward Baker moved from Lynn to Northampton, Mass., only 3 years after the settlement of that town. He had several grants of land from the town, and purchased several lots besides; he held town offices, and was respected and influential. In later years he settled his sons Joseph and Timothy there, and then returned to Lynn where he died in March, 1687.

In a History of Lynn by Alonzo Lewis and James R. Newhall (pub. 1865) it is said, "the will of Mr. Baker is dated Oct. 16, 1685, and having previously provided for some of his children by deed, not all of them are mentioned in it. He exhorts his family to live peacable and pious lives, and desires for himself "a decent funeral, suitable to his rank and quality while living." (There is a statement in the "History of Hadley," p. 248, that prior to 1742 funeral expenses were often very large and were paid out of estate of deceased, mourning apparel, gold rings, gloves, wines and liquors in very lavish style. In one instance 3,000 pairs of gloves and 200 gold rings were given at one funeral. In 1742 a law was passed prohibiting all this, except 6 pairs of gloves to bearers and 1 pair to minister.)

TIMOTHY BAKER

Timothy Baker, son of Edward, b. 1647, through whom the greater part of the family are descended, was "settled" by his father in Northampton, Mass., and lived on Elm Street (There are many fine old elm trees in Northampton. One of the largest, at corner of Elm and Prospect streets, was called the "Baker Elm," and tradition says it was planted by Timothy Baker.) He was a leading man in the town; was often selectman, and was dignified as "Mr." (At the time of the settlement of America the middle class, below nobility, baronets and knights, and above plebeians were "Esquire" and "Gentlemen" and bore the title of "Master" or "Mister." The titles of ordinary people were "goodman" and "goodwife.")

CAPTAIN THOMAS BAKER

"Capt. Thomas Baker, son of Timothy[2], and of course a grandson of Edward[1], the early Lynn settler, was taken captive by the Indians at Deerfield, on the terrible night of 29 Feb. 1704, and carried to Canada. He however, the next year, succeeded in effecting his escape. In or about the year 1715, he married Madam Le Beau, whose name figures somewhat in the history of that period. And the lives of both husband and wife furnish touching and romantic passages. She was a daughter of Richard Otis, of Dover, N. H., who, with one son and one daughter, was killed by the Indians on the night of 27 June, 1689, at the time they destroyed the place. She was then an infant of three months, and was, with her mother, carried captive to Canada and sold to the French. The priests took her, baptized her, and gave her the name of Christine. They educated her in the Romish faith, and she passed some time in a nunnery, not however, taking the veil. At the age of sixteen she was married to a Frenchman, thus becoming Madam Le Beau, and became the mother of two or three children. Her husband died about 1713. And it was very soon after that her future husband, Capt. Baker, appears to have fallen in with her. He was attached to the commission detailed by Gov. Dudley, under John Stoddard and John Fillmore for the purpose of negotiating with the Marquis de Vardreuil for the release of prisoners and to settle certain other matters, and went to Canada. From Stoddard's journal it appears that there was much trouble in procuring her release, and when it was obtained her children were not allowed to go with her. Her mother was also opposed to her leaving Canada.

After her return, Christine married Capt. Baker, and they went to reside at Brookfield, where they remained till 1733. They had several children, and among their descendants is Hon. John Wentworth, late member of Congress from Illinois. She became a protestant after marrying Capt. Baker, and substituted the name Margaret for Christine, though later in life she seems to have again adopted the latter. In 1727, her former confessor, Father Siguenot, wrote her a gracious letter, expressing a high opinion of her and warning her against swerving from the faith in which she had been educated. He mentions the happy death of a daughter of hers who had married and lived in Quebec, and also speaks of her mother, then living, and the wife of a Frenchman. This letter was shown to Gov. Burnet, and he wrote to her a forcible reply to the arguments it contained in favor of Romanism. And there are, or recently were, three copies of the letter and reply, in the Boston Athenaeum. The mother of Christine had children by her French husband, and Philip, Christine's half-brother, visited her at Brookfield.

All the children of Capt. Baker and Christine, seven or eight in number, excepting the first, who was a daughter, bearing her mother's name were born at Brookfield. There is no reason to doubt that the connection was a happy one. They held a very respectable position, and he was the first representative from Brookfield. He was, indeed, once tried before the Superior Court, at Springfield, in 1727, for blasphemy; but the jury acquitted him. The offence consisted in his remarking, while discoursing on God's providence in allowing Joseph Jennings, of Brookfield, to be made a justice of the peace—"If I had been with the Almighty I would have taught him better."

In 1733 Capt. Baker sold his farm in Brookfield. But this proved an unfortunate step, for the purchaser failed before making payment, and their circumstances became greatly reduced. They were a short time at Mendon, and also at Newport, R. I., before finally removing to Dover. Poor Christine, in 1735, petitioned the authorities of New Hampshire for leave to "keep a house of public entertainment" on the "County Rhoad from Dover meeting house to Cocheo Bo:me." In this petition she signs her name "Christine Baker," and mentions that she made a journey to Canada, in hope of getting her children, "but all in vaine." A license was granted, and it seems probable that she kept the house a number of years. She died, at a great age, 23 Feb., 1773, and an obituary notice appeared in the Boston Evening Post. The Mrs. Bean mentioned in the N. H. Hist. Coll. as having died 6 Feb. 1826, at the age of a hundred years, was Mary, the daughter of Capt.

Baker and Christine. She possessed her faculties to the last, and her eyesight was so perfect that she could, without glasses, see to thread a needle. Col. Benjamin Bean, of Conway, N. H., was a grandson of this aged granddaughter of Edward Baker, the Lynn settler."

Lewis and Newhall's History of Lynn, Mass.

Her husband died of "the Lethargy" at Roxbury in 1753 while on a visit to some cousins there. Her mother, Madame Robitaille, died in Canada at the age of ninety.

Christine, or Margaret Otis Baker closed her eventful life on Feb. 23, 1773, leaving a large posterity, "in good reputation, being a pattern of industry, prudence and economy. She bore a tedious illness with much patience and met death with calmness."
